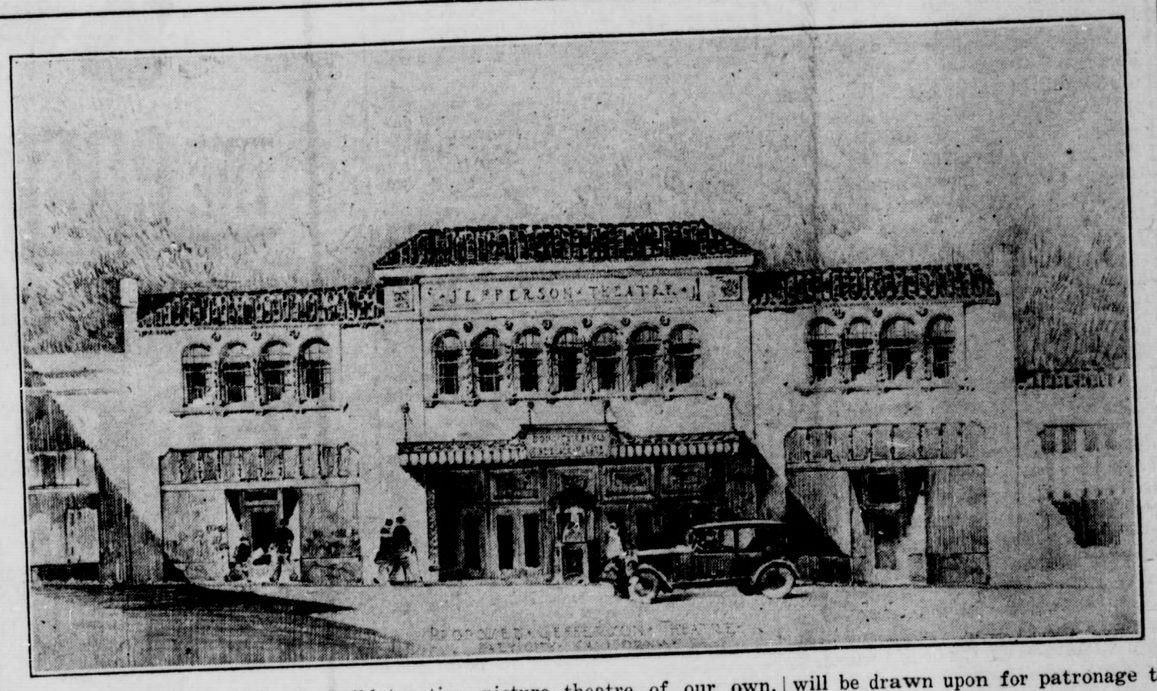
Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Pahlaka and family have purchased a home at 1051 Hanover and are now living there. They formerly resided at 181 Los Banos avenue.

New Motion Picture Theatre Will Be Erected in Daly City



Another step forward in the building program which is making Daly City one of the most substantial and rapidly growing cities on the peninsula.

The announcement is made that Daly City is to have a first class motion picture theatre, built by Daly City capital for Daly City people.

The new theatre is to be located at the corner of Mission and Flournoy streets, an ideal location, and it will be as fine a motion picture house as can be found in this section. The estimated cost of the building will be $91,100, exclusive of furnishings, and it is expected the additional equipment will cost $30,000.

The new theatre building will be a combination theatre, office and store building, and as shown in the above illustration, will be a beautiful and substantial building.

Several local business men, believing in the future of this community, and seeing the advantage of having a motion picture theatre of our own, have organized the "Jefferson Theatre Corporation." It is proposed to sell 15,000 shares of the capital stock of the company at this time, and they are being offered to the people of this vicinity at $10 a share. The authorized capital of the company is $250,000.

This company has been organized by local people, A. L. Stockton being president, and the other directors are H. H. Smith, R. C. MacArthur, J. E. McCurdy and Horace Fellows.

The new building will be a credit to the city, and when completed, the people of this section will have the best in motion pictures and vaudeville.

The location of the property is such that with the opening of the San Jose avenue viaduct and the Ocean Shore boulevard, with frequent street car service both on Mission street and San Jose avenue, the larger portion of the residential territory in San Francisco immediately adjoining Daly City, will be drawn upon for patronage to the theatre.

The men who are behind this worth while community enterprise feel that they have been fortunate in securing this valuable location for the theatre, and believe that in the near future it will be the center of a large population.

They have watched the progress of this city and are convinced that Daly City is bound to increase in population in a manner to surprise the most optimistic.

Daly City has been growing in population so rapidly of late that the need for a new theatre has become evident to all, and as the people of this section are entitled to the best, it is most gratifying to know that this imposing structure is to be erected. With high class motion pictures and vaudeville presented in an ideal setting, such as this new theatre will provide, it would seem that the success of the undertaking is assured.

BUILDING PERMITS ON THE INCREASE

City Clerk B. C. Ross reports the following building permits for the week:

W. F. Hughes, 675 Evergreen, four rooms and garage.

Metcalf Realty Co., 183 San Diego, three rooms and garage.

Chas. Anderson, 6301 Mission, addition.

L. Drougardi, Wellington, church rectory.

Jeffers, Tuene & Wiseth, 353 Lowell, five rooms and garage; 359 Lowell, five rooms and garage; 365 Lowell, five rooms and garage; 371 Lowell, five rooms and garage.

Sophine Junker, 149 Miriam, garage alteration.

Homestead Realty Co., 448 Bellevue, five rooms and garage; 444 Bellevue, five rooms and garage.

A. J. Kronquist, 390 Miriam, four rooms and garage; 180 West Lake, four rooms and garage; 210 Miriam, four rooms and garage; 20 Gambetta, four rooms and garage; 40 East Lake, four rooms and garage; 21 Gambetta, four rooms and garage; 45 Gambetta, four rooms and garage.

This makes another high seven day period of building permits, totaling at least $68,000.

The issuance of these permits indicates the building progress in Daly City. According to the number of permits issued, if the present rate is kept up, this years' program will total $3,536,000.

In April it was estimated that the indications were that $1,000,000 would be spent for new buildings, but at the present rate, this amount will be at least tripled.

LOCAL WOMEN ATTEND HISTORICAL SOCIETY MEET

Many members of the California History Club of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, attended the luncheon meeting of the California Historical Society recently held at the Hotel Clift in San Francisco. Mr. Carl P. Russell, Park naturalist of Yosemite and curator of the museum, addressed the meeting on "The Human History of Yosemite," illustrating his talk with lantern slides.

After the luncheon the guests were entertained in the rooms of the society in the Wells Fargo building, where an exhibition of views, prints, manuscripts, and books of historical character pertaining to Yosemite Valley and a most interesting collection of material from the Yosemite museum were being shown.

The members of the California History Club of El Carmelo Parlor of Native Daughters were the guests of Mrs. Josephine T. Johnson and Mrs. Ann Amelia Rose, who are members of the California Historical Society. The May meeting of the club will take place at the home of Mrs. Carl Schwarz.

LOCAL MASONS ATTEND SERVICES SUNDAY NIGHT

The services at the Grace Presbyterian church last Sunday evening drew one of the largest crowds ever assembled in this church. The women had started out to get fifty women, and there came about seventy-five or more, so that the entire north side was filled.

The local Masons came in a grand, good group, and many people had to stay in the Sunday school room and vestibule.

The orchestra opened the meeting with "That Wonderful Mother of Mine," followed by several selections of sacred music.

Mrs. Roof sang "Leave it With Him, for the Lilies All do," by James E. Ellis.

Mr. Kenneth McLean, Master of Crocker Lodge No. 454, F. & A. M., spoke very touchingly of the inspiration that comes from above, saying some might call it a hunch, but it nevertheless came from God and the world could not get along without God and the church.

The great audience listened with intense interest to the sermon on "The Great Secret of Human Helpfulness," being the key to peace and power and good will in the home.

At the close the Riddell sisters, Sybil and Dorothy, sang very touchingly a duet, making a very fitting close to the day.

Mrs. T. C. Swan, with her committee of helpers, furnished each guest and member a rose as they came in.

It was a real tangible evidence of what people can do when they have a mind to work.

New music is being purchased for the church orchestra and it is hoped to have it ready for the evening service next Sunday.

The church is preparing for Men's night on May 23, when laymen of the church will speak on the living issues of the neighborhood, and when good music will be given.

The theme for May 16 will be, "What's in your hand, where did you get it, and what are you going to do with it?"

TO VOTE ON SPECIAL BUILDING TAX FRIDAY

Since the building of Jefferson Union high school we have observed that new homes have sprung up all over Daly City, and new business houses have been established, while old business houses have expanded to take care of the increase in population.

The main street of Colma has undergone the same change. Property values have increased. In Daly City entire blocks of new homes have appeared. In Colma the Jefferson Park residential section is being developed. These new homes are of an excellent type, a desirable addition to any city. These homes mean more families, and more business for our community.

Of course this progress was bound to come, but how much was due to the fact that we have here one of the finest high schools in the county?

The vote of home owners is this: "We want good schools."

Now don't forget that this increase in population means more pupils in school, and we must keep the building program ahead of the needs of our children.

This brings us to the point that next Friday there is an opportunity for all citizens who believe in progress and want to get their shoulder to the wheel, to vote a special building tax to the high school.

We know that the high school looks big enough to house all the pupils there. But we also know that there is no shop department. Our girls at the high school study home economics in a first class rooms built into the main building. Our boys study auto shop in a very poor shack, several blocks from the school.

We know that the $27,000 asked for is to furnish not only an auto shop, but a shop building which includes a commodious auto shop, tool room, lecture room, and room for mechanical drawing.

We know, too that the high school trustees plan to use part of the tax for building, as soon as possible, tennis courts, handball courts and in the development of the grounds. We know that these grounds will eventually be the beauty spot of Daly City. The athletic fields will be the center of athletic activities for this part of San Mateo county.

For this reason, it is believed, the majority of the people will be for the special tax to be voted upon next Friday.

They are for progress.

NOW IS THE TIME TO ACT

Of all the communities on the bayside of San Mateo county, only two remain without local government, Menlo Park on the south and Colma in the northern part.

Both are well situated and since the earliest history of the county have been peculiarly prominent. One is the home of wealthy people and the other is the location where considerable wealth is produced in gardening and hot house enterprises.

In these two communities there is much restlessness at present.

Recently Melo Park was pained to see Atherton become a municipality out of its territory, and still more recently it tried to incorporate what was left and failed, but the end is not yet.

Colma has felt the distress of loss of territory twice, once when Daly City came into existence and again when Lawndale assumed the management of its own affairs.

Now, the people of Colma see homes by the hundreds being erected in Daly City, and very few going up in their midst.

They know the real cause why the home-builders prefer the neighboring locality is because Colma can not assure anyone proper sewerage, good water, or modern streets. People can not take the chance of locating where modern sanitary conveniences are not obtainable.

Another cause of restlessness for unincorporated localities is the campaign just beginning for the annexation of San Mateo county to San Francisco. People may scoff at that idea, nevertheless it is a probability of the next few years. The old influences are steadily being overcome by the great influx of new population. The shrewdest politician does not pretend to know all the people nowadays; far less has he control of them.

Should annexation to San Francisco take place, what will become of the unincorporated territory? That's the question that causes the people of Colma and Menlo Park to sit up and pay attention. They have no desire to be forgotten.

There are two moves for the people of Colma to consider in order that their future may be made secure.

One is to incorporate independently, and the other is to accept the hand of union and good fellowship that Daly City extends and unite in one strong municipality

To go it alone means independence, of course, and that is always a benefit to any community, but to have it in this case entails enormous and unnecessary expense. Another set of officers would have to be maintained and public buildings for them would be a necessity.

Uniting, the two localities would be a strong factor in either county or city affairs. Both places would profit by the union, but Colma would be the greater gainer, as it would have the benefit of the best local water system in this state.

The streets and the sewer systems would have to be paid for, by the localities in which they accommodate the people. Such is the only fair way.

The Colma Volunteer Fire Department has accomplished wonders, all admit, but with Daly City water and the Daly City Fire Department, how much more protection could be rendered! Just now, the far-seeing, unselfish leaders are a unit in believing that joining hands is the more sensible plan.

It becomes a necessity to act at once. Otherwise, the people of Colma will soon suffer another great loss of valuable territory.

Jefferson Park is fast looming into importance. Expense is not being spared in its preliminary work. All have noticed how the streets are being made and the sewers laid. An outlet is a necessity. Soon, people will be living there, and they will ask to be annexed to a local government.

Why wait for the new people to do what should be done now?

Local government means that the outlying, unoccupied territory, the property of residents of other localities, will be obliged to bear its proper share of the expense of providing the people with reasonable protection. It is necessary for the people of Colma to put themselves in a right position so that they will be safe, no matter how the future moves are made. They are not safe without water, sewers and streets. They are not safe without local government. They are not safe to remain at a standstill.

Marshal Doyle Recovers Stolen Cars

Marshal Doyle picked up a Chevrolet touring car, abandoned after being stripped on Whittier between Hanover and Bellevue, last Tuesday. The owner is Jas. Pagano, of 330 Union street, San Francisco. Our busy chief also picked up a stripped Jewett on Willits, near Citrus. The owner is H. G. Bryant, of 239 Jules avenue, San Francisco.

CITIZENS HONOR A DALY CITY BUILDER

Daly City now classes, from an appearance point, fully 100 per cent higher as a commercial center by the opening of Mayor H. H. Smith's lumber and building supply depot.

And far from detracting from its beauty, as less thoughtfully planned effort might easily have done, the whole blends so well and harmonizes so thoroughly with both skyline and the contour of roads and hills that it adds a sense of dignified, artistic utility to our city center which would be a credit to any "City Beautiful" planner.

"The useful," Ruskin said, "is as beautiful as the artistic; perhaps more so."

In this case, Daly City, the gateway to the peninsula, has added to its beauty and usefulness both, because every dollar's worth of business and every dollar in wages added to our city makes for a bigger, better and happier place for us all to live.

Probably there are some old-timers here who can remember the wagon one Hugh Smith drove into Vista Grande eighteen years ago, and from which he sold lumber a stick at a time to neighbors who needed a few 2x4s, or several pieces for the new houses which were commencing to dot the landscape.

Probably a few more can remember the little house down near the tracks where Mrs. Smith and her neighbors used to carry water for blocks, and you used to have to carry a barn lantern nights when you went out to keep from getting lost or stumbling over somebody's cow.

And quite a lot of us can remember a lot of times as the little shed grew larger and an office was added to it with a small stock of builders' hardware and paints as well as a small coal yard. Then many of us can recall when our own municipal water plant was installed and our City Hall was built, and our street work and sidewalks went in, and our schools were built, and then another crowning glory, "St Maximus on the Hill."

From the first wagon load of assorted sticks, worth (including the horses) maybe a couple of hundred dollars, the hand of Hugh Smith and his head and his heart is in it all, and through all of it—business, homes, city, schools, church—none of them would be what they are today unless his labor and his love made them so.

"If a man can write a finer poem or build a better mouse trap, though he live in the midst of a wood," Emerson wrote, "the world will beat a path to his door."

Truly our little world did beat a path to Hugh Smith's door. Many a widow can tell you, and many a strong man in need will tell you that they never came to that door unwelcomed, and that they never left it unhelped.

So one Wednesday, May 12, there was another pilgrimage of nearly all the old-timers and many new comers to Hugh Smith's new door—to do honor to a builder who builded better than he knew—to rejoice with a dreamer who made his dreams come true—and to say, to a man, "He deserves all the success the world can give him, and we're glad he is getting it."

Massive floral pieces from the Daly City merchants, Horace Fellows and other business associates and friends decorated the handsome modernly equipped offices, voicing congratulations and wishes for added success.

The two-story combination store, office and storage shed for the finished lumber occupies the front of the gore formed by the new Hillside boulevard and old Mission Road. The building occupies 8,000 square feet of floor space and the yard outside of that covers 30,000 square feet more, with ample room for expansion.

The store-office has all modern office equipment and a full line of builders' hardware and paints.

The shed will be full of finished lumber and a part of the upper story is designed for storage of frame and cabinet work. There are immense fire doors which readily slide into place.

Mr. Smith made a careful study of the construction of lumber sheds and yards for many miles around, and has adapted all of their good ideas and added some of his own.

Upon completion, the building showed up so well it was decided to put up an electric sign, said to be the only electric lumber sign in this part of the country.

Complete plans also call for garage, mill, and coal sheds.

"Business as usual," Mayor Smith says," and when I sell a few more sticks of wood and sacks of coal, I won't have to drive into town before business can go on again."

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Snyder and family are new additions to the population of Daly City, now residing at 274 Alexander.

Peggy Joyce will wed her fifth husband just as soon as his wife gives consent.

PRINTERS TO DANCE TOMORROW NIGHT

Many residents of this district are going to attend the annual ball of the Union Printers' Mutual Aid Society this Saturday night at Native Sons' Hall, at Mason street near Geary, San Francisco.

The society for many years past has given a ball every May, and so popular have these social functions become that people from all sections of the city, as well as many from various sections of the bay region, eagerly look forward to them with much interest.

This year's affair is being held in commemoration of the thirty-ninth anniversary of the societiy's formation, and the committee in charge has left nothing undone toward making it the most successful in the society's history. Many features of a novel and pleasing nature have been arranged, according to Chairman Cy Stright and Secretary George E. Mitchell, Sr., and a special committee has been selected to see that all strangers get acquainted and join with others in the festivities.

Mrs. Albert Springer, Sr., one of many women who are to act as hostesses at the Printers' grand ball this Saturday night at Native Sons' Hall.

Dan Treloar's well known Rainbow orchestra of jazz symphonists will again furnish the music, and George Brady, one of the most popular of the younger members of the society, who is to be the floor manager, promises plenty of it for those who enjoy dancing.

Women relatives of members are as keenly interested, and have assisted greatly in perfecting the arrangements. Prominent among the number is Mrs. Albert Springer, Sr., the wife of the secretary of the society.

WHAT EAGLES HAVE DONE FOR MOTHERS OF THE LAND

The American War Mothers, that organization of women who gave their sons to serve in the World war, have, in their official magazine, credited the Fraternal Order of Eagles with the origin of Mothers' day. In an article published in a recent issue is this statement:

"Records have been submitted to show that the beginning of the campaign for Mothers' day was in the club house of Kansas City Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles. Time: the fall of 1904 and the spring of 1905."

At the national convention of the Fraternal Order of Eagles held at Cleveland, Ohio, in 1912, the ariticle further points out, a recomendation setting aside one Sunday a year as Mothers' day became a law of the order. This was two years before the custom was recognized by Act of Congress.

The institution of Mothers' day is part of a broad sentimental and social welfare program of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, whose fundamental precept has always been "Protect the Home."

The keystone of the home is, literaly, Mother. So, to meet their fullest obligations, Eagles have done, and are doing, everything in their power to keep the family circle unbroken and to help mothers care for their children, especially in times of illness and want. They have never lost sight of that object. With it in mind they have urged workmen's compensation laws, primarily in the interest of mothers and children, for these are the real victims when the bread winner is brought home in an ambulance.

As long ago as 1898 the order provided for the services of a physician for members of the order and their immediate families. The physician's fees are paid from the common treasury. In the event of sickness, an Eagle receives a substantial sum of money. These two policies, still in force, are the foundation upon which the beneficial features of the Fraternal Order of Eagles are built.

The sum of $29,000,000 in sick benefits, $5,750,000 in funeral benefits, $9,500,000 for medical services, a total of $43,250,000—a stupendous sum—has been paid by the Fraternal Order of Eagles in the last twenty years primarily to help the mother and aid the family.

Today this powerful order has assets of $32,000,000, and 600,000 members. And the rallying cry is "For Mother and the Home."

Jackson county, Missouri, justly claims first place in the payment of Mothers' pensions. The power was granted largely through the efforts of a committee, on which were a number of prominent Eagles, that secured the passage of the necessary bill by the Missouri legislature. Judge E. E. Porterfield, an Eagle, drafted the statute. The state of Missouri, in 1910 and 1911, enacted a state-wide mothers' pension law, the first in the United States. Today nearly every state in the Union has a Mothers' Pension law, and the Eagles point with pride to the part their order has played "For Mother and the Home."

The order has an unusual patriotic record. Two weeks after the United States entered the World war, in April 1917, the Fraternal Order of Eagles passed a resolution that provided for raising, by voluntary subscription, a large sum of money which was to be distributed among the dependents of the members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles who lost their lives in the service of their country. Forty-five thousand members of this order enlisted. Approximately 1,500 lost their lives. In consequence, $1,500,000 has been distributed, under the supervision of a prominent member, Conrad H. Mann, among the dependents of fallen patriots. In nine cases out of ten the beneficiary was a mother. This order still pays gratuities of $1,000 to the dependents of veterans who die from wounds or sickness incurred during the World war. Again the inspiration for this activity is "For Mother and the Home."

Further, in keeping with this policy of protecting the family, especially the mother, the Eagles are today crusading for old age pensions. They pledged their efforts and their money to this cause in 1921, and since that time have seen their dreams come true in Wisconsin, Kentucky, Montana, Nevada, and the Territory of Alaska, where, sponsored by the Eagles, old age pension laws have been passed. In this work, they are inspired by the hope that the day will dawn when every deserving mother will be spared the poor house at the end of the road.

Thus, as The American War Mother magazine says, "Mothers' day is the first in a chain of Eagle accomplishments that are increasingly protecting Mother and the Home."

We doubt that many girls lost their matrimonial chances by leaving their hair long.

nplicity, efficiency and high qual- all combined, are the arguments he receiver described in this ar- . The circuit was first worked out a simplicity and efficiency angle. k features have been eliminated, every possible little development improvement in operation has been rporated.

he circuit is shown in the illustra- . Two stages of highly efficient d radio frequency amplification, a ector and two real stages of audio- quency amplification certify to long ance range and the best of tone lity in reception.

Three low-loss pickle bottle coils, bined with high quality straight- frequency condensers are the jor factors in selectivity. The os- ation control permits operation just ow the oscillation point of the tube l insures maximum performance h the best tone quality and a mini- m drain on the "B" batteries.

One of the particular features of this cuit is the efficiency of the audio ges, not only in the selection of od transformers, but also in the oper use of by-pass condensers in or- r to filter out all stray radio-fre- ency currents and extraneous noises. ere remains much that is still to be rned about the intelligent use of by- ss condensers.

"C" battery in the grid returns of e audio transformers is another ctor in good audio amplification. The ud speaker can be plugged in on ther the first or second stage jack the audio-frequency amplifier. The st jack is filament control for the st tube so there is no unnecessary urrent consumption when only the rst stage is used.

Size of Set.

The use of a 24-inch panel makes the et a compact one without unnecessary rowding and interstage coupling, which would be detrimental to satis- factory operation. There is no over- crowding in the panel layout and each the controls is so placed for con- venience in tuning. The use of real vernier dials makes tuning a pleasure. The controls are by no means com- plicated or difficult to operate. A rheostat is used for the detector tube, another for the two radio-frequency amplifier tubes, and a third for the audio stages. The sockets are uni- versal and therefore permit the use of either storage battery or dry cell types of tubes. A resilient spring ac- tion in the socket design assures a perfect contact and the elimination of microphonic noises by its non-rigidity.

Nine binding posts on a raised strip are easily accessible and make bat- tery connections a simple matter. Everything is easily assembled and wiring is a simple, rapid operation, with none of those tricky inaccessible connections which are the bane of set constructors.

Apparatus Required.

The first question every fan asks before deciding on the building of a set is "What parts will I need?" The following is the list of apparatus se- lected by the writer for use in his set:

1 panel, 3-16 by 7 by 24 inches.
1 baseboard, ⅜ by 8 by 23 inches.
3 Eastern classic coils, type EB.
3 National Equicycle SLF con- densers, .00035 mfd.
3 National variable velvet vernier dials.
2 Multistage R-D meloformers.
5 Eby UX cushion sockets.
9 Eby "Ensign" binding posts.
1 binding post strip, 3-16 by ¾ by 17¾.
2 Carter "Imp" rheostat, IR-6, 6 ohms.
2 Carter "Imp" rheostat, IR-25, 25 ohms.
1 Carter "Imp" pilot switch.
1 Carter "Hold-Tite" jack, No. 104.
1 Carter "Hold-Tite" jack, No. 103.
1 Centralab radiohm, No. 200-M, 200,- 000 ohms.
1 Turn-it grid leak.
1 Turn-it panel control.
4 Dubilier condensers, type 656, 0.5 mfd.
1 Dubilier condenser, type 640, .002 mfd.
1 Dubilier grid condenser, type 640- G, .00025 mfd.
15 lengths Celatsite wire, No. 14 (black, red, green, yellow, brown).
1 cabinet to suit.
Miscellaneous screws, lugs, solder, etc.

In the selection of apparatus as listed above it would be well to just consider the reasons for their use. The pickle-bottle type of low-loss winding has become very popular because of its high selectivity features. The coils, when used with the condensers mentioned, cover the complete wave- length band as required for our popu- lar broadcast reception. The vernier dials have the unusual feature of a variable vernier ratio. In other words, the vernier adjustment can be made coarse or fine, as desired.

Color Wiring.

The use of color scheme in wiring is based on some definite plan that is to be followed. In wiring the set this schedule should be followed:

All negative "A" leads use black.
All positive "A" leads use red.
All grid leads use green.
All positive "B" amplifier leads use brown.
All positive "B" detector leads use yellow.

In building the function and poten- tial of each lead can then be told at a glance.

Don't permit the wiring to run too close to the coils. Keep all the plate and grid leads as short as possible.

Winding Form Is Easy to Make From Tubing

The basket-weave form of winding is one of the most compact efficient methods known. With it most any kind of coil or inductive tuner can be made. It has the following features that make it desirable for most every use; compactness, low loss, low ca- pacity, low or no dielectric losses and is easily mounted, being very sturdy and rigid when properly wound and sewed together.

These coils can be wound on any cir- cular form having an uneven number of spokes. The main difficulty encoun- tered is in removing the wire from the form after the winding has been made.

In the illustrated method this has been eliminated. The spokes in the bakelite tube are flexible and will bend in releasing the pressure on the wind- ings and allowing their removal with- out mutilating them in any way. They are made by first marking the tube and then cutting the slots with a hack- saw. A slot on each side of the tube can be cut at the same time if the blade is set properly on both of the marked lines. Before the coil is re- moved it should be sewed together by running a piece of thread up and down through the slots in the coil. Do this twice around the coil and then knot tightly. The coil can now be removed and is ready for use. If the builder desires he may leave the coil on the form. It will always hold the coil in shape and serves as a mounting.—Cleveland News.

Loop One Foot Square

A loop one foot square will work with a sensitive receiver. Set the two cross-pieces in the shape of an X and attach the upright piece to one of them. Cut slots in the end of each of the four ends of the cross-piece to re- ceive four pieces of hard rubber 7 by 1 by ¼ inch. Now wind 26 turns of loop wire or standard single lamp cord one-quarter inch apart about the rubber pieces set perpendicular to the frame of the loop.

Short Socket Posts

If the socket binding post is not long enough to hold several loops of bus wire, remove the binding post screw and replace it with a longer one.

Piaits Used on Scarfs

Plaits have a strangle hold on fash- ion at present and they even clasp the necks of fashion's devotees. The new- er scarfs imported from Paris, are of georgette, in all the soft spring color- ings. They have the main portion of the scarf, which is wrapped about the throat, plaited, while the ends are left to flare open gracefully.

Black Accessories

New Tweeds in Small Patterns

Equally smart and perhaps a bit more practical are cape coats made of novelty tweeds in combinations of black and white, brown and white, blue and gray, and beige and brown. The patterns are small, rather conven- tional and very effective.

BURBANK GETS PRESS TRIBUTE WORLD WIDE

SANTA ROSA.—The worldwide attention given the death of Luth- er Burbank is being evidenced these days in the reams of press clippings from the newspapers of the world which are being re- ceived from the various bureaus at the office of the dead master of nature. It is estimated that Burbank's work and his passing called forth more tributes in the press of the world than possibly any other figure in world work.

Records of the United States Dis- trict court for the northern district of California, and of the special nar- cotic agents of the treasury depart- ment reveal that United States Dis- trict Attorney Hatfield has cleaned up all the old narcotic cases that have been pending for years. There are now pending only current cases that have originated within the last two or three weeks. In addition to the disposal of these old cases United States District Attorney Hatfield, since taking office October 1, 1925, has convicted practically one hundred persons for violation of the Harrison Narcotic Act. During that time there have been no acquittals whatsoever in narcotic cases.

The San Joaquin Light and Power Corporation has undertaken the con- demnation of a strip of land, less than one acre in extent, near Lingard, south of Merced, Merced county, to afford completion of its power hook- up project with the Great Western Power company. The Oakdale and South San Joaquin irrigation districts are to secure an additional 8,000 acre feet of storage water without cost, as a result of the proposed expenditure of $100,000 by the Sierra & San Francisco Power Co. for a reservoir at Herring Creek. Under the terms of the agreement between the district and the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. and the Sierra & San Francisco, under lease by the larger company, all storage hereafter created is to be turned loose for the benefit of the districts without addi- tional cost.

The number of prisoners at Cali- fornia's two penitentiaries has almost doubled in the last six years, accord- ing to figures filed with the State Board of Control showing that there are 4,718 inmates at Folsom and San Quentin at the present time as com- pared with only 2,741 in 1920. The total population of Folsom Prison was 891 six years ago, whereas it is 1,580 at the present time. There are 3,138 prisoners at San Quentin now as against 1,850 in 1920.

United States Attorney George J. Hatfield has announced that a writ of review has been granted by the Su- preme Court of the United States in the famous Quadra case. He states that this means that the supreme court will now be called upon to af- firmatively pass on the question of when and under what circumstances the coast guard may search British ships hovering off the coast of the United States. If the supreme court holds that such searches are justified under the recent treaty with Great Britain international smuggling of liquors will be dealt a death blow.

LOOT!

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

(©, 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

Sir Henry Morgan, Fiend

GREATNESS is only a relative term, so that the statement of one histo- rian that Sir Henry Morgan was the "greatest of all the brethren of the coast," must be accepted with reserva- tions. If the designation "brethren of the coast" be interpreted to mean those who wrote their names in history in red with looting and with murdering, then Sir Henry Morgan, buccaneer, may well claim pre-eminence. But if the term be limited strictly to pirates, Morgan must give place to others.

For Morgan, a Welshman born in the year 1635, can be regarded as a pirate only by one people—the Span- iards, to whom he was for so long a terrible scourge. It is doubtful if the English care to class him with that other terror of the dons, Sir Robert Drake, or even to admit that he com- mitted some of the blackest crimes in history under the English banner. But the fact remains that Henry Morgan became Sir Henry Morgan by word and act of His Gracious Majesty, Charles II, and it was an English court which decided a libel suit in Morgan's favor against the publishers of Esque- meling's famous book, "History of the Bucaniers," in which Morgan was painted as an inhuman monster.

The son of a Welsh farmer, Morgan took to the sea early, eventually going to the West Indies where his uncle was for a time deputy governor of Jamaica. He soon made a name for himself as a commander of privateers and in 1668 scored his first success by looting the town of Puerto Bello. "Puerto Bello gold!"—what romantic visions of untold wealth that term conjures up, but in the case of Morgan and his buccaneers it should be ac- companied by words only which mean untold agony and fiendish cruelty.

This was followed by other success- es—the raid on Maracaibo, the storm- ing of Fort St. Lawrence, the famous march up the Chagres river and finally the peak of Morgan's infamous career, the capture and sack of the city of Panama. The full tale of this would fill a volume. A quotation from one historian will give an inkling of the career of Sir Henry Morgan: "The bright moon from the clear heaven looked down in all its tender tropic splendor upon such a carnival of crime and debauchery as possibly the world never saw . . . they had a vast amount of precious merchandize, one hundred and twenty-five beasts of bur- den laden with gold, silver and jewels, and six hundred prisoners for ransom."

"Loot!"—Sir Henry Morgan wrote that word in a manner which never will be surpassed!

"Long Ben," Hero of a Play

NEXT to Captain Kidd, perhaps no other pirate leader ever caught the popular fancy so much as Capt. John Avery, alias Henry Every, alias Captain Bridgeman, variously known as "Long Ben," and the "Arch-Pirate." A large part of this was due, no doubt, to the fact that he was the hero of Charles Johnson's play called "The Successful Pyrate," which was acted at the Theater Royal in Drury Lane.

Avery was born about 1665, the son of a Plymouth innkeeper, and from the beginning he had a turbulent career. As a youth he shipped as a cabin boy and soon proved himself an accom- plished young desperado. He first came into prominence as first officer on an armed privateer, The Duke, whose commander, Captain Gibson, the Spaniards had engaged to fight French pirates in the West Indies. Avery led a mutiny on board the ship while it lay at anchor in Cadiz harbor, put the captain ashore and was himself elected captain. Then he renamed the vessel the Charles the Second and set out.

At the Isle of May he seized the Portuguese governor and held him for ransom until a supply of provisions were sent aboard; then he sailed away to the coast of Guinea to engage in the slave trade, capturing two or three English vessels en route. Near the Island of Princess he captured two Danish ships, and then set out for Madagascar, from which base he op- erated in the Red sea.

At Aden Avery's ship was joined by two English pirate ships and three from America, all bent upon the same quest. An incident which took place a short time before this was typical of Avery's capacity for deviltry in gen- eral. He had sailed into the harbor of a town named Meat with the intention of selling some of his stolen merchan- dise to the natives. But they were suspicious of Avery's villainous looking "traders" and refused to do any busi- ness with them. In order to punish them the pirates burnt their town.

Although the pirate ships kept a vigilant watch for the Mocha fleet it managed to elude the freebooters in the night. But Avery was hot in pur- suit the next morning and, singling out the biggest vessel, captured it after a two-hour battle. It turned out to be the Gunsway, owned by the Great Mo- gul himself, and one of his daughters was aboard. From this ship the pirates took a vast loot—100,000 pieces of eight and the same number of chequins. The Great Mogul was furious at this outrage and indifferent as to whether innocent or guilty should pay for it, threatened to lay waste to all the East India company's settlements in re venge. Whether or not he made good on his threat is not recorded, but he never made Avery suffer for it.

THE BRITISH STRIKE

The general strike in Great Britain is at an end, the trades union congress having called off the strike, following the promise of Premier Baldwin to see that a temporary grant of further subsidy to the mine industry will be made, while the mine owners have agreed to withdraw the reduced scale of wages.

Both sides to this first great general strike have probably learned a lesson. It has been found on the one hand that united labor can tie up the affairs of a nation, while labor has undoubtedly learned that capital and labor should work hand in hand to solve the problems of a nation.

It will take some time to get back to normal following this unprecedented suspension of business in the British Empire, but all parties seem convinced that the breach will soon be healed and business will go on as usual.

In the meantime, the miners, for whom the fight was made by the labor leaders, feel that they are getting somewhat the worst of the bargain, and are grumbling over the settlement. It is hoped they will get better treatment than they expect.

FRIENDLY ADVERTISING

Illustrating the preesnt trend of good will advertising, a plan recently adopted by a railroad in the South is interesting.

Recognizing the important function of the local station agent, through whom most patrons of the road have their only contact with the management and its policies, the new advertising seeks to bring the agent in closer touch with his community.

This is done in a quarter page space, in the local paper, with a picture of the agent and a litle sketch of his services with the road, accompanied with reading matter explaining how he may be of greater service in advising the public concerning their traveling and shipping problems.

This is in line with the policy of many retail stores, which include pictures of their leading salespeople in their advertising from time to time. There is something about this kind of advertising which compels attention, for nothing in the world is more interesting than people, particularly local people.

Intimate, friendly advertising is to a great extent taking the place of the bombastic, exaggerated style so prevalent a few years ago. The new method is more pleasing and interesting—hence more profitable to the advertiser.

The nervous bride usually becomes more composed immediately after the groom utters the fatal words "I will."

Modern martyrs also bear publicity with becoming fortitude.

COAST GUARD HEROES

Fifty members of the United States coast guard were killed during the past year and some 400 were injured in line of duty, while engaged in operations against "rum row," Lieutenant Commander Yeandle told a prohibition gathering in Detroit recently.

Most of these deaths and injuries were the result of forcing the men to keep to sea in 75-foot boats during the terrific gales which sweep the North Atlantic, twenty-three deaths having been caused by men being swept from the decks of their vessels last winter.

Commander Yeandle declared that much larger ships must be supplied for use of the coast guard if this deplorable loss of life is to be checked.

Regardless of anyone's views on prohibition or the means being taken to enforce it, the fact that so many lives are sacrificed and so many men are crippled in the performance of their duties, through the failure of the government to provide suitable boats, is little short of a national disgrace.

Coast guardsmen have always been heroes in times of stress, but there is no justification for sending them to death in 75-foot boats.

BUSINESS LEADERSHIP

Learn from defeats and keep on. This is one of the supreme tests of a leader—how does he take defeat? Does he take it as final, or does he use it as an educational incident.

If a man wants to be a leader he must prove that he does not break under pressure. He must make it clear that he is not a lath painted to look like sturdy iron.

He must not resign under fire. He must not play the part of the fox with the hounds after him.

Many of our ablest business men failed at first. But they took their defeat as a lesson, not a smash. And they carried on.

The fact is, as all full-grown men know, that failures and defeats are unavoidable—they are just as unavoidable in business as they are in sport.

In all pioneer work—in all experimental work, defeats are unavoidable. They are the steps of the ladder up which we clime to success.

All inventors know this. Edison, for instance, makes a habit of trying one thing after another until, by sheer persistance, he finds what he wants. In this way by thousands of failures, he invented electric light.

Many men of the pioneer type are always spurred on by a defeat, because it proves that their job is a hard one.

Unless a man has the hardihood to keep on,in spite of ridicule and opposition, he can never accomplish anything.—Herbert W. Casson in Forbes Magazine.

A STRENUOUS CAMPAIGN

Now that the campaigns are warming up, it may be as good a time as any to republish the experience of an Arkansas candidate for sheriff, which has been going the rounds of the press for several years.

"Lost four months and 20 days canvassing, lost 1,360 hours of sleep thinking about the election; lost 40 acres of corn and a whole lot of sweet potatoes; lost two front teeth and a lot of hair in a personal encounter with an opponent; donated one beef, four shoats and five sheep to barbecues; gave away two pairs of suspenders, five calico dresses, five dolls and thirteen baby rattles; kissed 126 babies; kindled fourteen kitchen fires; put up eight stoves; cut fourteen cords of wood; carried twenty-four buckets of water; gathered seven wagon loads of corn; pulled 475 bundles of fodder; walked 4,060 miles; shook hands 9,080 times; told 10,001 lies and talked enough to make 10,000 volumes; attended twenty-six revival services; was baptized four times by immersion and twice some other ways; contributed $50 to foreign missions; made love to nine grass widows and got dog-bit thirty-nine times; and then got defeated."

CASHING IN ON CRIME

Regardless of the particular activities in which we engage, it is natural that we should endeavor to look ahead, with a view to estimating the returns which may be expected.

Unfortunately, many do not look ahead at all, or if they do, they fail to heed the warnings plentifully supplied by the experiences of others. This is especially true of those who decide to embark upon a life of crime.

Laying aside all moral considerations, and estimating the rewards of a criminal solely in terms of money, health and comfort, it seems strange that any should try to beat such a desperate game. Yet thousands try it and fail. They fail whether they are ever adequately punished by law or not. The daily fear of detection and punishment is often worse than punishment itself. For this reason, many criminals give themselves up when they can no longer stand the strain.

Ray Majors, recently captured again in Kansas, charged with a long list of daring crimes, speaks on the subject with authority. He says:

"I am 30 years old. I began my career of crime ten years ago. Eight of these ten years I have spent in jails and penitentiaries. I have been shot thirteen times with pistols, once with a rifle, and three times with a shotgun. My left shoulder is shot away. My left arm is paralyzed from the elbow to the shoulder. One lung gone. My body is scarred from head to foot with bullet wounds. And I say: 'You can't win.'"

Great men seometimes have queer fancies. The Right Honorable Montgomery Carlisle, noted ship builder, who designed the ill-fated Titanic, member of the privy council of Edward VII, and friend of the former Kaiser, prophesied his own death a few weeks ago, and shortly afterward actually died at the age of 71. He directed that the "Merry Widow Waltz" be played at his funeral.

It appears that during the war President Wilson had a Senate and two Houses on his hands.

What has become of the little girl who used to plead for long skirts?

Editor and General Manager
WILL ROGERS

Another "Bull" Durham advertisement by Will Rogers, Ziegfeld Follies and screen star, and leading American humorist. More coming. Watch for them.

The BULL'S EYE is a publication that goes to print. When does it go to print? It goes to print when ever there is something to print. A lot of papers, in fact to be exact, all of them, have a certain time to be issued, regardless of the news. If nothing has happened that day or that week they have to come out just the same. They want you to pay for them whether they are any good to you or not. Why should a paper be printed if there is nothing new to print?

Sing Sing don't electrocute a man at a certain hour every day. They wait until they get a good man and then electrocute him They don't have a set time or custom, and that is the way the BULL'S EYE is operated. We don't go to press at ten o'clock tonight just because we went to press at ten last night. No, sir! We wait until we have something that is worth while to our myriads of readers. We get them accustomed to the fact that when they see the BULL'S EYE, they say to themselves, "The BULL has seen something worth while," and that is why the Paper is out today. Because it has news for you.

We saw a man smoking a sack of "BULL" DURHAM and he was getting so much satisfaction out of it that we feel it our duty to tell those that never used "BULL" DURHAM just how they too can get satisfaction.

Will Rogers

P.S. Remember, you won't see us again until we have something worth while.

P. P. S. There is going to be another piece in this paper soon. Look for it.

Crude indeed and inefficient too were the first water wheels used in industry—but from these the genius of the West, after untiring research, study and expense, perfected the now efficient water wheels used in hydro-electric plants.

Thru this development, California power companies have led the way in hydro-electric power generation—resulting in constantly improved service at decreasing costs to consumers.

PUBLIC HIGHWAY TO DUMBARTON BRIDGE

A report of the ownership and title of Willow road was submitted to the board of supervisors at their meeting at Redwood City on Monday by the California Pacific Title Insurance Company, and District Attorney Swart was requested to prepare a proper resolution to declare this road a publis highway. Willow road will be the approach to the Dumbarton bridge.

An invitation to the supervisors to attend the Fourth of July celebration at Half Moon Bay was accepted with thanks by the board.

A communication from the Southern Pacific Company requesting permission to construct two grade crossings for spur tracks near Bayshore station, one on Peabody street and one on San Bruno avenue, was referred to Supervisor Hickey for investigation.

A petition was presented to the board by Mrs Mona Christenson, asking for the annexation to the North Palo Alto lighting district of that portion of the North Palo Alto sanitary district, now without the boundaries of the lighting district. Further acton will be taken in the matter at the next meeting.

The first subdivision of the Burlingame Shore Land Company's holdings, comprising the old Winchester property in Burlingame, will be put on the market at once, according to plans announced by Attorney Charles N. Kirkbride, when filing the map of the property with the county supervisors last Monday. The first subdivision contains thirty acres, divided into one hundred lots comprising five blocks between Oak Grove avenue and the Bayshore highway.

The superivsors approved the preliminary measures incident to placing the map on record, and it will be formally filed in the office of the recorder.

MARTHA WORST MAKES DISTRICT SCHOOL RECORD

By completing Seventh and Eighth grade in one year and high school in three years, Martha Worst has made a record for this district of which our teachers may well be proud. In addition to this she took the complete college preparatory course, carrying more units of study than any member of the Senior class of Jefferson Union high. And not content with this series of achievements, she assumed the task as chairman of the constitution committee and superintended the revision of the entire constitution of the student body. Finding time still hanging heavy on her hands, Martha took the rigorous course of examinations and was awarded the Life Saving Medal of the Red Cross Society of America and acted as a teacher of physical education in the Wesley church Daily Vacation Bible school. Besides which she played on both basketball and girls' baseball teams in all games for Jefferson high and kept up her athletic work in the "Wiki-Wiki" club of Girl Scouts of America. And then to top it all, she edited the big year book of the high school.

Next year, Martha, whose brother Marc is the only scholar of this district who made the four year high school course in three years, will join her brother at San Mateo Junior College. Can any better proof of the inspiring climate, wonderful school system and class of energetic, purposeful young citizenship be produced by any other city in California? And isn't "Daly City a good place to live," when it can issue such a challenge?

Mrs. B. W. Haubrich, Mrs. E. Bergmann, Mrs. George Martinelli and Mrs. S. V. Fischer motored to San Carlos last Wednesday afternoon.

SMALL UNITS MAKE UP TELEPHONE BUSINESS

When a customer drops a nickle into a slot of a coin box telephone and gives the operator a number the telephone company is selling five cents worth of service. It is a small retail transaction. Yet the whole business of all the telephone companies of the country is made up of retail transactions.

Of course, some sales are larger than others; long distance calls necessarily cost more than five cents. But every telephone call, whether local or long distance, is a separate sale. It is the sale of a connection between a particular pair of telephones. Every connection is "made to order." Every order for a particular connection is handled separately. It has to be. Telephone calls cannot be bunched and put through several at a time, like letters or express packages.

Retailing, according to the dictionery, is "selling in small quantities, selling directly to the consumer." That is just what the telephone companies do. They sell telephone calls in small quantities (one at a time) directly to the consumer. The telephone business is a retail business.

Some people are so modest that they shrink from facing the naked truth.

LEARN TO PREVENT CHILDREN'S DISEASES

The Bureau of Hygiene of the California State Board of Health is undertaking a plan for helping California children to be fit for entering school this fall, and has made arrangements for free examinations of pre-school children to be given at Vista Grande school, Daly City, Tuesday, May 18, and Wednesday, May 19, at 9 and 12 a. m.

One of the important features of the campaign for bettering the health of children who are to enter school next fall, lies in the instruction of parents in the prevention of common summer diseases of the digestive system. This campaign is being conducted in nearly every county in the state. Conferences, at which the parent is present during the physical examination of the child, will be extremely profitable in disease prevention. Diarrhea and enteritis cause the deaths of many infants and young children every year. These occur mostly during the summer months and they are due for the most part to improper care and feeding of children.

The infant who has an abundance of air space in the home, with plenty of sunlight, who is clothed to suit the weather, kept scrupulously clean, and who is fed in accordance with the simple common sense advice of a physician, is almost certain not to develop these intestinal disorders.

Mothers who attend these conferences wil have opportunity to learn at first hand of the simple practical methods now being employed in safeguarding the lives of every child against these dangerous diseases of childhood.

WIFE FEARS FOUL PLAY WHEN HUSBAND DISAPPEARS

Disappearing after he is believed to have obtained a loan of $1,000, Wesley E. Lambert, 35, of 321 Hanover street, Daly City, a contractor, is being sought by the police, following an urgent appeal made to them Wednesday by his father-in-law, the Rev. W. R. McKnight of 34 Whittier street.

The Rev. McKnight was summoned early Wednesday by his daughter, Mrs. Lambert, mother of three small children, and informed that her husband had not returned home. Her father promptly called in the police, telling them that he feared foul play.

According to the Rev. McKnight, his son-in-law was last seen by a friend of the family, Felo Lucila, of 79 Broad street. Lucilia said he met Lambert at First and Market streets at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The loan, it was said, was not for contracting purposes, but was drawn on the collateral of a newly completed house on San Jose avenue, between Lakeview and Mount Vernon avenues.

The missing man is 35 years old, 6 feet tall, weighs 190 pounds, has brown hair and brown eyes and wears a moustache.

World's Laborers Ever in the Lead for Universal Peace

By WILLIAM GREEN, President A. F. of L.

LABOR has led in the movement among nations toward peace and peaceful solution of national and international disputes. There is no subject which appeals more strongly to working men and women than the subject of peace.

Because of their numbers and social status, the workers have been more deeply and vitally affected by war and the ravages of war than any other groups of society.

Democracy is the hope of the world. Establishment of real peace comes clearly back to the individual, his mind, his conscience and his thoughts. Crystallized public opinion will be the deciding factor in establishment of international peace and good will.

"This fact is especially true in a democracy where the people hold within their hands the power to govern and to administer the affairs of government. The cause of world peace must and will suffer if the power of government is vested in dictators or if the governments become autocratic.

The World war was the climax of the horrors of all previous conflicts and the greatest tragedy was the suffering of women and children. This alone, should be sufficient reason for abolition of all war.

Present Easy Divorce Laws Blamed for Lowering of National Morality

By BISHOP WILLIAM T. MANNING, of New York.

Many questions are asked me about a strict divorce law. Here are two that are typical: "Does a strict divorce law tend to the increase of immorality?" It does not. The statements that it does so are without foundation. This is shown by the experience of South Carolina, where divorce is not granted for any cause, and of Canada, where the divorce law is a strict one. In the year 1916 Canada had only 57 divorces, while the United States had 112,036. There is no evidence that the morals of the people of Canada are unfavorably affected by their divorce laws.

Another question often asked is this: "Is not a strict divorce law a cruel and unjust thing to many innocent sufferers? It is not. That leg- cruel and unjust thing to many innocent sufferers?" It is not. That leg- of society as a whole. Jesus Christ was the most kind and merciful teacher who ever stood on this earth. He tells us that for the good of all marriage must be held sacred and says, "Those whom God hath joined together let not man put asunder."

Constantly we now see in the newspapers notices of divorces obtained in Paris or elsewhere by those whose names are well known among us and who seem to have forgotten their duty to God, to society and to their country. In not a few cases the real reason for the divorce is the desire to marry some one else. In many instances the new alliance is not only in mind but is definitely arranged before the divorce is obtained. The moral degradation of such a situation needs no comment.

Plainly this threatens the very existence of the family as an institution. It is destroying the meaning of marriage and is making it only a temporary arrangement to be determined at the whim of either party to it. How can a home exist if it is understood that it may be dissolved at any time on the most trivial grounds and often merely because those who entered into this sacred relation have become bored, or because one of them wishes to form an alliance with a new partner? Homes cannot be built and cannot endure on such a foundation as that, and a nation cannot endure unless it preserves the sacredness and stability of the home.

Curative Power of Music Not Given the Importance It Deserves

By DR. W. E. DENTIGER, of Connecticut.

Vice President Dawes has written a "Melody in A" that is just the very thing for hysteria. Schubert, when he composed the immortal "Serenade," conceived unwittingly a blessing for the insomnia patients.

Cows give more milk and hens become enthusiastic in the matter of eggs when music is played. Music can do everything for the body that the old, nonprogressive physicians could not do. The Bible is authority for the statement that music was used in this way in the ages before Christ. David, for instance, gave musico-therapy to Saul when he was supposed to be insane.

The flowing notes of a violin, the rhythmic thrills of a piano—but not jazz—can be employed to smooth out domestic tiffs, and as for notable examples of the curative value of music, Gladstone was cured of rheumatic pains by a solo in G and Chopin's music aided Carmen Sylvia. Fourteen New York hospitals are now employing music with good effect in the tuberculosis wards.

I believe that with proper care, diet and sanitation and music we can all live to be one hundred and fifty years old.

Various ailments require different musical prescriptions, but I believe that within twenty years the "musico-physician" will be a well-established figure in medicine.

American "Movies" in Demand in Every Part of the World

By C. J. NORTH, U. S. Department of Commerce.

There is no country abroad of any size or consequence in which motion pictures "made in America" are not exhibited and in many of them the American "movie" commands up to 90 per cent of the showings. Thus the United Kingdom screens 90 per cent American productions; France goes higher than 75 per cent; Germany, up to January 1, 1925, 80 per cent; the Scandinavian countries, nearly 80 per cent. The Latin-American nations show our pictures in similar proportion, as do also the countries of the Far East, Australia being our third largest market, with over 90 per cent American pictures. Canada shows practically as many American films in proportion to its theaters as we do in the United States.

Sir Robert Horne, Chairman Interparliamentary Union Conference —The people who talk of England being on the verge of ruin are people who have no sense of perspective. Far out overseas are great dominions which belong to her and which today are not only preserving but gradually increasing the trade which they have carried on in the past with the mother country. I see emerging from our present distress a great movement for hurrying on the plans to make co-operation between England and her dominions more effective in a way that normal times and old prejudices would never allow to be done.

Lady Astor—I would go around the world five times over if I thought I could do anything to persuade the nations to abandon submarines and poison gas.

GOWNS FOR THE BRIDESMAID; PARIS SPONSORS TAILLEURS

APPARENTLY modistes think of bridesmaids' gowns mostly in terms of georgette and lace—if one says "wedding clothes," these materials go without saying. As a material for airy and delicate garments, georgette drifts naturally into the company of fine laces—it has no other rivals—and the two combined have captured the feminine world.

Georgette and lace are combined in as many different ways as there are stars in the sky; some of them resulting in stately gowns, others in sprightly and youthful models. The pretty gown pictured belongs in the latter class and is one of many designs for bridesmaids' frocks. It will prove a success in the wedding cortege and a joy ever after—or as long as it does duty as an afternoon or dinner dress. Ecru georgette was chosen by its designer, with ecru lace for yoke, sleeves and apron flounce, but it would be beautiful in any light color as blue, peach, orchid, rose or green, with ecru lace or lace dyed to match. Since pastel shades harmonize so well all maids need not wear the same color—this is a matter for the bride to consider. She may want all her attendants in one color—or she may put them in various light, flower-like colors.

Besides lace and georgette we have in the front rank of things fashionable the lace and taffeta combinations also used in imitating reptile skins.

And it will not make any difference to a thoroughgoing American daughter of Eve, whether Paris sponsors the tailored suit and the tailored frock or not—they are the fundamentals of her wardrobe and fit her needs and ideas. No American need look outside her own land for the best interpretations of the tailored suit, for there are plenty of examples within it that reach the apex of good taste and artistry.

The most fashionable colors for the practical everyday tailored suit are navy blue beige and black, in twills charmeen and other durable weaves, but considerable attention is given to light shades of green, brown, cocoa and tan. Tweeds in ordinary and fanciful weaves, and in both usual and unusual colors, are offered in plain, unusual styles. There are some beautiful suits developed in the heavier crepes, combining a tailored smartness with the softness of these materials. Another unusual development appears in tweeds which are made in high colors, as light blue and rose color. The perennial hairline stripe is among those present but not as prominently featured as small, black and white checks. Often these checks are used in combination with plain materials in suits having a skirt of the checked goods and a coat of the plain with collar and cuffs or oth in which light and lovely colors in taffeta silk are made up with silver-run laces in cream, ecru or matching colors. This is an adorable combination, especially when period styles are chosen for bridesmaids' gowns.

IN LACE AND GEORGETTE

TWO PARIS INTERPRETATIONS

Just as important as the frock and the hat in the bridesmaids' ensemble, are the slippers and stockings. Pretty slippers of silver kid, sometimes elaborated with rhinestone and bead embroidery and sheer silver gray silk stockings, prove a happy choice for any sort of frock. Kid leathers are er decorative touches in the check.

The two smart suits from Paris, shown in the sketch, which the artist seems to have met on a ferryboat or tender, are from O'Rossen and made of wool cloths. The design at the right is very practical for general wear, made up in twill or charmeen in any color. The tailleur at the left was developed in cream-colored flannel and has the appearance of a tunic worn over a plain underskirt.

PARADOXURE

"My name," said the white-whiskered Paradoxure, "is a name everyone can't have."

"Ah, good friend," said one of the other animals, "it is a name everyone doesn't want to have.

"Some would find it quite hard to go through life with a name like yours.

"Everyone would get it wrong and there would be so many mistakes and so much confusion.

"People and animals without a doubt must feel relieved that they haven't such a name."

"Well," said the white-whiskered Paradoxure, "it may be all very well for people and animals not to want my name.

"But let me tell you one thing—they couldn't have it!

"No, only a white-whiskered Paradoxure can own such a fine name."

"It's good you like it," said the other animal. "I'm glad to hear you like something."

"Ha, ha," laughed the white-whiskered Paradoxure, and then turned

"Of course I like my name, and I don't think much of anyone who doesn't like it," he said.

"Would you really like to know?"

"Yes."

"Then say 'please.' I may be cross, but you don't have to be."

"Please."

"Well," said the white-whiskered Paradoxure, "when one looks like a puma and isn't one that is enough to annoy a creature.

"I'm always being mistaken for a puma.

"Then my home is supposed to be in China and I'm not there.

"That's annoying.

"Then I have a name which, to tell you the truth (even though you know it)—but at least to admit the truth, is so hard for everyone to get.

"It is so hard they make mistakes in it all the time.

"That is trying, especially when one has such a fine and handsome name as I have.

"Then I am stared at without being introduced; well, it is all enough to make a creature cross.

"And so I snarl and I growl at the people who look at me, and I try to say to them:

"'Proud people, you are looking at the Paradoxure with white whiskers, who is known as the white-whiskered Paradoxure from China.

"'He doesn't look like every creature you see around the zoo or around the town or around the schoolhouses.

"'But you all look alike and there is nothing interesting about you.

"'So I am snarling at you and growling at you with disgust as I look at you.

"'That is what I am doing, I am.

"'I only hope you understand.'"

WOMAN COULD NOT SLEEP

Her Mother-in-Law Knew A Remedy

Mrs. Belle Thompson was in a very weak and run-down condition for four years. She had great difficulty in getting to sleep at night and even then did not sleep soundly. She would wake up again and again. Besides this her appetite was poor. "My mother-in-law told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash," she writes. "I took six bottles of the Vegetable Compound and I was not the same woman at all. I could sleep and would get up in the morning singing and feeling fine. I am the mother of three children and always after the babies came I had to take treatments, but I can truly say that this last time I have only used the Sanative Wash. It does me more good than the treatments. It keeps me on my feet to care for my children and I do most of my work. I feel it my duty to let you know how much of the medicines have helped me." —Mrs. Belle Thompson, R. 2, Rossville, Georgia.

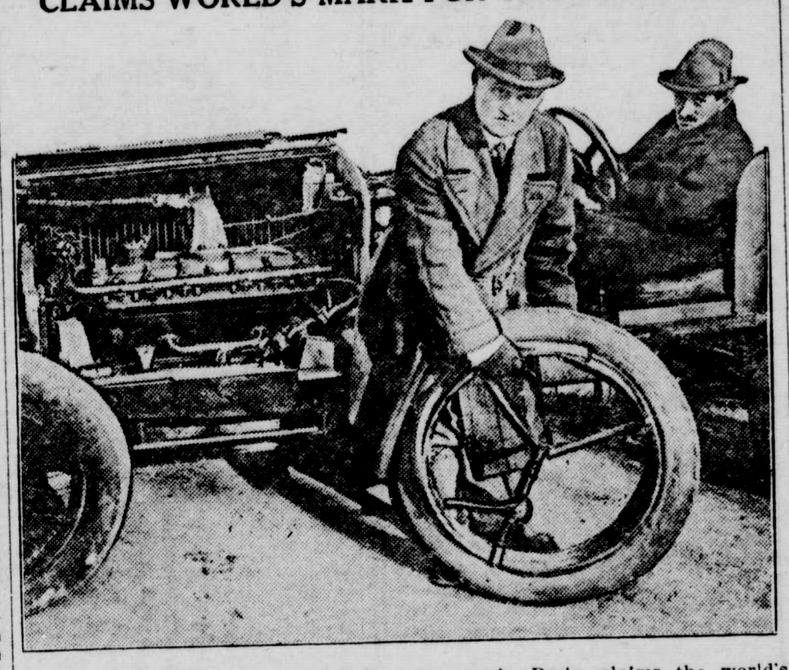
CLAIMS WORLD'S MARK FOR TIRE CHANGING



J. A. Kennedy, an automobile salesman in Paris, claims the world's record for single-handed tire changing, his mark being seventeen seconds. He is shown here with the tool which he invented for this extra-fast method of shifting shoes.

SAYS MOTORIST IS BEST WALKER

Driving Has Taught Them Lessons of Safe Pedestrianism, Says Smith.

Whoever may be impressed with the idea that automobiling is making people forget how to walk will do well to revise that impression.

This is the conclusion reached by Ernest N. Smith, general manager of the American Automobile association, after gathering some statistics on the subject and making some personal observations.

Few Drivers Caught.

According to Mr. Smith, comparatively few automobile drivers are caught off their guard when walking, a majority of pedestrian accidents involving persons who have had no experience in handling cars.

"Automobiling is teaching people how to walk safely," he explains. "An active motorist is also an active walker, for in using the car he has additional need for walking in congested districts. He knows which way to look when he steps across a one-way street, and when crossing at crossings he is aware of the ever-present hazard of the car that is making a right-hand turn.

"When the automobile driver walks he does it in a competent manner, and when he crosses streets at policed intersections he makes allowances for the inability of the officer to look out for every one. Automobiling shows the motorist a perfect picture of the danger he faces as a pedestrian, and so when he walks he conducts himself accordingly.

No Judge of Distance.

"Persons who do not drive motor cars have no conception of speed or stopping distance. They see traffic from a narrow angle, being unable to see hazards in their proper proportions. The real dangers often escape their attention while they are busy worrying over things that would not be likely to harm them.

"Automobiling is not making people forget how to walk. On the contrary, it is making them learn to walk in a way that befits the modern age."

Reckless Driving Cause of Many Auto Accidents

The number injured and killed in auto and motor-cycle accidents is appalling. Most of these accidents can be accounted for by reckless driving. The worst of it is that the innocent suffer with the guilty, whether riding with the reckless driver or in the other car.

It is a great temptation when out on a fine country road to "let 'er out." The width of the road, the curves, the traffic, have everything to do with safety when going in a swift moving car. A safe speed in one place may be a very dangerous speed in another place not far distant. National prohibition will reduce accidents considerably.

Every driver ought to feel some responsibility for the safety of those riding with him and others using the highways. The day of regret is bound to come to every reckless driver. The intent to kill may not be there, and no jury can bring in a verdict of murder, yet the results are the same. Speeding ceases to be a joke when it ends in a permanent injury or a death. The guilty one can never get away from the remorse of that moment of careless driving.—Successful Farming.

Leak in Vacuum Feed

In cars using vacuum feed a leak in the line running to the inlet manifold may interfere with proper operation of the engine at high speed, though not at low. The reduced vacuum in the tank, caused by leak, results in less fuel being lifted than is ordinarily the case, and with a wide-open throttle, let us say, on a hard pull, the engine demand will be greater than the supply, which means spitting and possibly stopping of the engine.

Replacing Brake Lining Is Not Difficult Task

To replace a brake lining, the bands or shoes are taken off, the axle is placed in a vise, while the rivets are knocked off with a cold chisel or hammer. New strips of the lining fabric are cut to size. Beginning then at one end of the strip, two or three rivet holes are located with a blue pencil and cut with a punch, after which the fabric is put in position on the shoe.

Medium hard rivets, to prevent scoring of the drums, are passed through the holes and are then headed down securely at the back of the band. They must be sunk well into the fabric lining, so that no projections are left. With the strip held tightly to prevent wrinkling, and with the band at its original curvature, the next hole is marked, punched and riveted in the same way.

The operator simply keeps on around until the entire strip of lining is riveted down into place on the shoe. The braking systems of our modern cars are efficient enough under ordinary circumstances, but they are not powerful enough to allow a margin for slack maintenance. They must be kept right up to the mark, and systematic inspections and repairs when needed are dictated by common sense.

Lost Compression Quite Disagreeable to Driver

Do not allow your engine to lose compression. It is disagreeable to the good driver and creates a larger running expense, causing loss of fuel and power. The careful motorists will check up on compression in each cylinder at regular intervals, opening all priming cups or removing all spark plugs, one at a time, and revolving crank. If the cylinder which has its priming cup closed or plug inserted resists to a good extent his efforts to revolve the engine, that cylinder has good compression. All cylinders can be tested in the same manner, closing priming cups and replacing spark plugs in each cylinder when the test is completed. There are other methods for testing, such as listening for hissing noises on compression strokes of pistons, allowing the car to go down hill with ignition turned off and with transmission in low or second speeds to note the resistance of the movement of the car which each cylinder offers, or a compression gauge may be used.

Getting Out of Sand

When a car is driven into a sandy spot in the road and the rear wheels spin there is no use in keeping on spinning them. The more the wheels spin the deeper the car sinks in the sand and the more difficult it will be to get it out. If no rope or burlap is available, deflate the tires and with the gears in first engage the clutch slowly. If this doesn't help, get two wooden planks and place them behind the rear wheels.

Means Pep in the Engine

Did you ever wonder why the engine does not show the accustomed pep or why the lights burn dimly or the ignition seems poor? Unfasten the wires and bars at the battery terminals and notice if they are clean. They must be clean if current is to flow freely. Scrape off with a stick any green or white deposit you see, and spread a little cup grease over the parts to prevent corrosion.

Horn Saves Car

Sounding the horn upon approaching the crest is splended insurance against a head-on collision. The wise motorist is sensible enough not to be on the wrong side of the road in the act of passing another car at the crest of a steep hill, but he never knows but that the "other fellow" may be doing it on the other side. The modern motorist has to be his brother's keeper for his own safety.

Use for Old Files

Frequently it is necessary for the car owner who does his own repair work to file a piece of cast iron that has been subjected to friction and so has acquired a glaze or skin. The best way to get through this skin is to use the edges of an old file. If a new file is used on this sort of surface it is likely to be ruined.

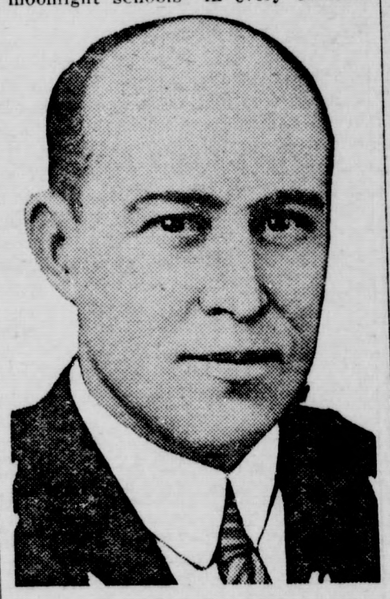
NO ILLITERACY IN 1930, DAVIS' MOTTO

The United States stands eleventh in illiteracy among the enlightened nations of the world, according to the federal census of 1920. Hughes B. Davis of Duncan, Okla., who was elected national vice commander of the American Legion for the year 1925-26 at the national convention at Omaha in 1925, thinks that condition should be eradicated and he is taking a big part in a nation-wide move to eradicate it.

Mr. Davis' work in connection with the elimination of illiteracy in the United States, and in Oklahoma especialy, brought his name before the national Legion convention. He was elected unanimously national vice commander.

As head of the Oklahoma Americanism commission of the Legion and chairman of the affiliated organizations endeavoring to stamp out illiteracy in that state, Mr. Davis hopes to launch a movement in co-operation with the United States bureau of education that will result in "No Illiteracy in 1930."

As chairman of the adult education committee of Oklahoma, Mr. Davis plans to eradicate illiteracy in Oklahoma by reaching 5,000 illiterates annually. Adult schools sponsored by Mr. Davis' committee are called "moonlight schools and opportunity schools." These schools sponsored by the Legion are for adults who want some education or more education, and are not for illiterates alone. An effort is being made to establish the "moonlight schools" in every community or school district in Oklahoma where there are adult illiterates or adults who need such schools.



Hughes B. Davis.

Mr. Davis began his World war service as a private at Camp Travis, Texas, on October 3, 1917. He was assigned to Company A, Three Hundred Fifty-seventh Infantry. Then followed steady promotions until captain's bars glittered on his shoulders. He commanded Company C, Three Hundred Thirty-fifth battalion tank corps, overseas and until his discharge in May, 1919.

His Legion record is long and impressive and ranges from post commander to national vice commander. He was department commander of Oklahoma in 1921-22 and was alternate national executive committeeman in 1922-23

Largest Claim Awarded to a Disabled Veteran

The largest claim ever awarded a disabled veteran by the United States Veterans' bureau was received by Perry L. Desch of Lincoln, Neb. He was recently awarded $10,772.50 in insurance and compensation and, in addition, was allowed compensation of $157.50 each month as long as he lives.

The payment of the claim represents a seven-year fight in his behalf waged by department American Legion officials and Mrs. J. P. Jensen of Blair, Neb., Legion war service secretary in Nebraska. Desch is afflicted with muscular atrophy, known as "creeping paralysis," as the result of his service in the chemical warfare division during the war. There is no hope of cure, doctors say.

War Record Necessary

"Within a few years no man will be nominated for President of the United States unless he has a World war record," predicted Harry C. Wilder, New York state commander of the American Legion, in a recent address at Rochester, N. Y. A like prediction was made by the late President Harding, who based his statement on political history.

Matthews Honored

Col. C. S. Matthews, commander of Aviators' post of the American Legion, New York City, was recently elected vice president of the newly organized International League of Aviators. The American unit of the Aviators' league will be Post No. 4 of the Legion and will be located at New York City.

PLEA FOR RADIO SETS

Secretary Hoover recently made a plea for the donation of radio receiving sets for use by lighthouse keepers as a means of relieving the monotony of their isolated lives. The appeal is a most worthy one.

Few realize the loneliness experienced by light keepers on remote coasts and islands, where weeks and even months elapse between visits of vessels.

Before the advent of the radio there was no means whereby these temporary exiles might keep in touch with the rest of the world, so they were compelled to make the best of the dreary existence imposed by their occupation. A few have obtained receiving sets, but as their pay is not large, many are unable to afford them, and it is on behalf of these that Secretary Hoover has made his appeal.
